Dr. Murray Found Dead On Tracks Bloody Basket New Murder Clue

BELOVED PHYSICIAN KILLED BY FALL TO EARTH FROM TRAIN; TWIN CITIES GRIEVED

Doctor and Mrs. Murray Were
On Their Way to St.
Louis, Mo.

HAD BEEN IN DINING CAR
PRECEDING THE TRAGEDY

Train Was Searched For The Missing Man Without Success

The mortal remains of Dr. W. M. Murray, beloved physician and former mayor will arrive from Columbia, Tenn., on the Nashville accommodation tonight. Plans for the funeral have not yet been announced.

Grief was written on the countenances of all Twin City residents who had known Dr. Murray in life, when this morning at 8 o'clock, they were told that their old friend and physician was no more.

The body of the dead man was found last night near the Louisville & Nashville Railroad track just out of Columbia.

With Mrs. Murray, the doctor had left his home in Albany on the Louisville & Nashville train No. 2, yesterday afternoon, for St. Louis, where he expected to have his eyes treated.

Mrs. Murray became ill, while she and her husband were in the dining car. She excused herself from the table and went to the ladies dressing room of her Pullman. When Dr. Murray did not appear Mrs. Murray had the train searched and when she arrived in Nashville she communicated with Dr. J. L. Gunter at Albany and asked him to assist her. Before Dr. Gunter could take a train for the north, the sad news was received here that Dr. Murray had been found dead.

In speaking of the passing of his life long friend, Dr. Gunter said: "He was the dean of the medical profession in Morgan County, and was without a peer in his profession in the state of Alabama. As a man, I have not had the pleasure of being intimately acquainted with his equal. He was a really big man, big of heart and possessed of a keen intellect. He was kind always. He delighted to serve the poor—those who needed his service, but whose ability to pay was limited. As an official he was active and patriotic; as a citizen he was in the front ranks with those who desired progress along the right lines. As a friend, I know he was true; his heart was as of pure gold. Too many sweet things could not be said of Dr. Murray."

Dr. Murray came to the Twin Cities in 1890 and was a native of Canada. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Cecelia Buchheit, who died several years ago. His last wife, who was Miss Pearl Caldwell, survives him. He was a member of the Morgan Kiwanis, and other similar organizations.

Dr. Murray was at one time president of the Morgan Kiwanis.

Court Must Dispose of Baby

Mrs. Edward Rich, of Jersey City, prayed for a baby boy, and when her child was born, she asserts, the nurse told her it was a boy. When the infant was given her at the hospital it was a girl, and she and her husband refused to take it, declaring it wasn't their child. The case will have to go to the courts for another judgment of Solomon, as the hospital authorities and Poormaster George Murray insist the Riches accept the baby.

SALESMAN DEFENDS GOOD NAME OF BROKEN ROMANCE VICTIM

Wilbur Legette Declares He Was Man Who Visited Mrs. de Bouchelle's Rooms

(International News Service.)
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—Wilbur Legette, a travelling salesman of Atlanta who identified himself as "the third person in the shattered romance" of Asa G. Candler, soft drink manufacturer of Atlanta and Mrs. de Bouchelle, New Orleans society woman, today stood ready to return to his home to "defend the honor of an insulted woman in a manner such as becomes a Southern gentleman."

"I am the travelling salesman mentioned by Mr. Candler and the whole story is a lie, a damnable lie," exclaimed Legette here today in commenting on dispatches stating that Candler had broken off his engagement to Mrs. de Bouchelle, because a "report had been brought to him reflecting upon the character of his fiancée."

Candler had said a travelling salesman was responsible for the broken romance.

"It's not the character of the woman—no, there is no finer or earth than she" declared Legette. "It's money and relatives of a man who gives away a million dollars for a birthday present and narrow minded and religious fanatics who abhor the marriage of opposite religious beliefs. 'I had been in Mrs. de Bouchelle's rooms about five times but never except when I had been invited and always in the presence of no less than three other girl friends."

"And I want to state in defense of the finest woman I have ever met that it was practically an impossibility for her to entertain gentlemen in her rooms except in the presence of the girls she chaperoned and during the whole convention she was kept busy from 9 in the morning until two the next day."

"At that time I had just come out of a government hospital and had not been for my uniform I doubt that Mrs. de Bouchelle would have paid any attention to me."

ATTORNEY ARRIVES

(By International News Service.)
ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 11.—Henry Gamble, New Orleans attorney for Mrs. Onecima de Bouchelle, reached Atlanta today to fight the Candlers on their own ground in behalf of his client, who says her marriage to Asa G. Candler, Sr., was broken off by alleged slanderous statements against her character.

The attorney's first step, following a consultation with Mrs. de Bouchelle was to consult Atlanta attorneys who are thoroughly familiar with Georgia laws, so that definite legal steps can be taken by the Louisiana attorney.

He stated that he could not state definitely the nature of the legal action to be taken against the Candlers for alleged slander, but affirmed Mrs. de Bouchelle's statement that she was not interested in the Candler money.

MANY DISMISSED IN TRIAL OF SHOPMEN; OTHER CASES HEARD

Dismissal of 10 defendants in federal court cases growing out of the railroad strike injunctions here occurred late yesterday at Huntsville. Those dismissed were: J. P. Erp, Robert Lee, Edward King, A. L. Thurman, Elmore Martin, Joe Parker, John Cross, Henry Lee, Phil Dismore and Welch Dinsmore.

There was no evidence, it was said, to connect them with the alleged offense against the federal court injunction prohibiting interference with men going to work in the railroad shops here. Friends of the men dismissed today were extending congratulations to them.

The dismissals comprised the first act of the legal drama now being enacted at Huntsville before Judge William L. Grubb. Approximately 45 men were involved in the alleged violations of the spirit of the federal court decree and it is expected that the cases will be called as rapidly as possible.

DISCOVERY IS NEAR TREE WHERE CHOIR SINGER AND RECTOR HELD FATAL TRYST

Reports of Additional Arrests
In Murder Mystery Are Prevalent Today

FILLED WITH RAGS AND
QUANTITY OF PAPER

Mob Attack Is Made On Deputy Sheriff Frank Kirby
At Depot

(By International News Service.)
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 11.—The finding of a blood stained basket near the scene of the murder of Rev. Edward Hall, wealthy rector, and Mrs. James Mills, beautiful choir leader, led to a report today that one or two more arrests were expected soon.

The basket was discovered in a gulley not far from the spot where the bodies were found. It was an ordinary chip basket of bushel size and contained a quantity of papers and rags with blood and covered with fingerprints.

A new line of inquiry has developed involving a woman not connected with either the Hall or Mills families. This woman is suspected of harboring a jealous resentment and if it is found suspicion against her is justified, Hayes will be released.

Public opinion is growing that authorities will not be able to prove the charge of first degree murder that has been lodged against Hayes. Public dissatisfaction against the authorities over inability to clear up the mystery found vent today in a mob attack on Deputy Sheriff Frank Kirby.

Kirby is reputed to have followed Hayes and Schneider for two weeks after the murder, finally getting the statement from Schneider which resulted in Hayes' arrest.

When Kirby was attacked he took refuge in the Pennsylvania railway ticket office, barring the door.

Kirby ultimately was rescued by the police. Another mob threatened to tar and feather a newspaper photographer for making a picture of Hay's mother. Hayes made a lengthy statement to his counsel, Thomas Haggerty, accounting for every minute of his time for a week previous to the Hall-Mills murder. It was claimed by Hayes' friends that he would be able to establish an alibi.

RADICALS PLAN AN ACTIVE POLITICAL ROLE THIS AUTUMN

(By International News Service.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Radicals and liberals in 300 American cities were called upon by the I. W. W. today "to compel action to effect the release of the 72 persons held in federal prisons as the remnants of a war time offenders convicted under the espionage act and other war laws."

It was the first move of the I. W. W. organization in the present congressional campaign. Radicals were urged to take the stump against candidates opposed to amnesty, to organize amnesty demonstrations a day or two before election day, to hold big parades and to enter political campaigns in every manner.

Tax Offices To Be Open to January 1

For the convenience of the tax payer of the county, arrangements have been perfected whereby the offices of tax collector and assessor will be kept open at the courthouse until Jan. 1. A competent man in each department will be in charge, and those who desire to assess and pay their tax can have the opportunity to do so any day. This will be quite a convenience if tax payers will take advantage of it, and will save much of the rush and worry incident to the closing month of the year. The collector and assessor will begin their rounds over the county on Oct. 16, but the opportunity will be present to pay at the courthouse at any time.

Big Toll Taken In Enforcement Of the Dry Law

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Three hundred officers of the law have been shot and killed during the past year while engaged in enforcing liquor laws.

This latest estimate of the prohibition death toll was made by prohibition enforcement officials today.

The list was said to include the names, not only of government prohibition agents, but sheriffs and local officials.

Most of the killings have occurred on the border, and along the coast in combats with smugglers.

BROTHERHOOD MEN CHARGE EQUIPMENT OF RAILROADS BAD

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Charges that mechanical conditions on the railroads of the country now are such as to constitute a "menace to the traveling public" were laid before President Harding today by general counsel for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen.

President Harding was informed by Oscar J. Horn and Thomas Stevenson, counsel for the brotherhoods, that many railroads are disregarding safety laws and using defective equipment to a far greater extent than the public knows. They asked the president to take steps to compel the railroads to observe the law and protect the public.

"The president agreed with us as to the necessity of correcting conditions," said Horn. The president also agreed, they said, that the rail executives had misrepresented the condition of railway equipment during the strike which resulted in enormous increases in the number of bad order locomotives and cars. Enginemen and trainmen now are being killed and injured because of this equipment, they said.

Harding said he would ask for additional locomotive inspectors when Congress reconvenes.

Jumps From Boat To Death in River

(By International News Service.)

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11.—A man believed to be Fred H. Hood, of Florence, Ala., committed suicide here late last night by jumping from the Canal Street ferry into the Mississippi River. A note found in the band of his hat, reading: "My name is Fred H. Hood, Florence, Ala., myself is starving," is the only clue to the man's identity.

The boat had just left the Algiers landing when the man, who was well-dressed, leaped overboard.

Ferry boat traffic was stopped for 30 minutes but the body was not recovered.

SMALL BLAZE OCCURS.

A small blaze Tuesday afternoon at the residence of J. R. Thomas, 209 East Church Street, Decatur, was easily controlled by Decatur department. The blaze did small damage, nothing but chemicals being used to extinguish it. The Albany fire laddies responded and stood by in case their services were needed.

Points Out

TURKISH NATIONALISTS

Further Differences Between Kemal and British Must Be Ironed Out

(By International News Service.)

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The armistice signed by the allies and the Turks at Mudania is purely of military character and has nothing to do with the Near East peace conference which is to follow, according to a statement made to the International News Service today by Rechad Bey, envoy of the Turkish Nationalists in London.

"The agreement signed by General Sir Charles Harrington, the British Near East commander and Ismet Bey is a military convention, nothing else. When the main conference comes, Turkey will not agree to any foreign troops maintaining a garrison on the Turkish straits, nor foreign warships controlling the straits."

"The Turks will insist upon participation in the conference by Russia and the Republic of Georgia." The British insist upon the right to maintain a garrison at Chanak, such as they now have at Gibraltar.

BRITAIN WINS.

(Associated Press.)
MUDANIA, Oct. 11.—The armistice covenant, signed by representatives of the Turks and allies contains the exact terms submitted by General Sir Harrington.

Pasha held out for a large number of soldiers in Eastern Thrace and argued at length on several other points, but gave way on each. The allied representatives left for Constantinople last night.

LONDON RELIEVED.

(Associated Press.)
LONDON, Oct. 11.—A peaceful solution of the Near Eastern tangle apparently has been reached on the basis of a surrender of Eastern Thrace to the Turks with proper safeguards for the Christian minorities and neutrality of the Dardanelles. News of signing of the armistice brought great relief here.

RUSSIA IS RESENTFUL.

(Associated Press.)
MOSCOW, Oct. 11.—Russia, as a world power, said M. Tchitcherin, Soviet foreign minister, "must be reckoned with in consideration of all matters bearing upon her interests, such as the freedom of navigation through the Dardanelles and any proposition to leave the Soviet without representation at the first conference proposed by the allies for settlement of the Near Eastern question is altogether unsatisfactory to the Moscow government."

GREEKS DECLINE.

(By International News Service.)
LONDON, Oct. 11.—General Mazarakis, envoy of Greece in the Mudania conference, refused to sign the armistice protocol until he could consult the Athens government, said an official dispatch this afternoon from General Sir Charles Harrington, British commander in chief at Mudania.

WE FAVOR ACCEPTANCE OF HENRY FORL'S BID FOR MUSCLE SHOALS.

DR. M. W. MURRAY.

The Twin Cities are bowed in sorrow today because of the untimely death of one of her foremost citizens, a servant of the people for over a quarter of a century, as he went in and out of their homes practicing his profession in a most skillful way. He was a humanitarian; he loved humanity, and their burdens were his in a large measure, and whenever opportunity presented, he never failed to respond in a most befitting way. As a man he was most lovable, kind hearted, modest and unassuming, thoroughly capable and ethical in a marked degree in every phase of his profession, and numbered his friends by all who knew him.

AN ENGLISH MAN HAS HIS SAY ABOUT SUPER-MEN.

A Dr. Adami, of England is promulgating a new doctrine under the sun. He says that none but super intelligent people should be admitted to the governing class. In theory Dr. Adami is right, but the trouble is who shall decide "who is who"? Our American constitution declares that all men are equal; but Thomas Jefferson would not have agreed that the slaves on his plantation were his equals, nor would Mr. Jefferson have been willing to say he was the intellectual equal of William Shakespeare. Following out his theory Adami would create what he calls a "national stud book" so that an employer desiring a perfect employee, or a woman wishing a perfect mate could turn to this book and make a selection. But the question naturally arises who is going to be perfect enough to tell who shall be enrolled in the "stud book"?

"It is ridiculous to suggest," says the Westminster Gazette, "any series of tests capable of discovering anything beyond the ability to ask such tests. In the end our main objection to all these schemes, which are stereotype, is that they are morally, even if not physically, illerable and no making of the test voluntary would cause them to be less so."

"Character and emotions," says the Daily Telegraph "stand outside Adami's tests, yet we suspect the future of the race depends as much on these forces as on the body or intellect. And though we were to grant that science as its scale for every activity of human beings, we must still ask whence its standard of perfection in the harmony of them all. The perfect man in the end could be only what a board of examiners thought a man ought to be and we have but little faith in the perfection designed by the committee."

It is also urged against Adami that the adoption of his plan would mean a return to the heathenish doctrine of the "survival of the fittest," and a reversion to an aristocracy of mental and physical force. Physically and mentally speaking Jack Dempsey would be a super man, but his own record would hardly admit him to the immortals. The mental ability of many men would fit them for rulership over others, but such men might have so many moral defects as to unfit them all together. The best known way of creating governing class is to give all equality of opportunity, and then let each one choose for himself just how perfect he wants to be. The schools and colleges of the country, as well as every other legitimate means for the exercise of the faculties, help greatly in developing the ability to govern among all the people.

LEARNING TO WRITE

How is the art of good writing to be acquired? Mark Twain once said: "I don't waste time hunting for a right word; I put down the first that comes to me, and if I have to use the same word in the sentence following I do so without shame." When he said this he had been writing the better part of 40 years and there is a reason to suspect that the right word came to him easily and naturally. Certainly Mark Twain's plan would never help a beginner to subtilize his perceptions, to refine his sensibility and bring coherence to his scattered judgments.

A good many things about writing for publication have to be left undefined. They come to the students by instinct if they come at all, and he may learn to write without ever being conscious of them. But he will have to be conscious of and measure the relations existing between reactions to literature.

Does he know why he feels there is a perfect thing in Stevenson's "Isle of Voice"? Does he know why he feels there is a perfect thing in Meredith's opening love scene between Lucy and Richard? These things are a matter of instinct.

There is no scene about instinct, but there is plenty about style. That is a name given to a certain aspect of literature. It is quite external.

The internal part of writing is the writer's attitude toward life. The intellect, upon which style is a sort of polish, does pay some part in the expression of this internal thing, but that part is always subsidiary. Emotion dominates. A born writer exercises his art because he is moved to be so. He apprehends his world emotionally, but the different feelings various objects in it aroused in him are always related. One modifies the other, sometimes one drives out another, but their conflict or agreement effects permanent results. This is a permanent mode of feeling. It constitutes a writer's equipment.—New York Herald.

RACIAL GROUPS AND FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

A recent article in the "Yale Review" by Professor Turner of Harvard, to which attention has been called in these columns, is a study and analysis of the rival influence of section as against nationality. As therein pointed out, our country is giving signs of sectional selfishness that almost can be compared with the national or political rivalry between the various countries of contemporary Europe, and these differences of aim and objective are based largely upon economic differences which result from geographical location. But there is still a different phase of the matter which Professor Turner did not stress, but which is just as important as a dividing influence, and that is the peculiar interests of race.

The history of the controversy with regard to the adoption of the League of Nations never can be understood unless there is borne in mind the part that our foreign born citizens played in the final decision. They were in general opposed to the League, at least as proposed, and their vote went heavily against the Democratic party and in favor of Mr. Harding. It was the sum of these racial blocs, plus the large number of American born voters who feared any departure from the traditional policy of the United States, that culminated in the Republican "landslide."

More and more, during the past few years, have our more recently naturalized citizens been casting their vote on lines of racial solidarity, not alone in national but also in State and municipal elections. Mayor Hylan profited largely by this fact when re-elected to office with his huge majority a year ago. Both the Democratic and Republican tickets in this State have been cast into final form during the past week with an eye to these considerations. And instead of this movement toward disintegration of the body politic showing signs of disappearing, it has been steadily growing in volume and effectiveness. Thus the "bloc" system is one of the most prevalent, as well as harmful, in current American affairs. Any one familiar with the history of this country during the early years of our national period, and certainly up to the time of the Civil War, knows that sectionalism was the continuing and ever-recurring curse of our nation. Fortunately it was forever, we trust, done away with after 1865. But the present disintegration is, if anything, even more dangerous, and easily can result in just as serious consequences.

At the present time, every step made by our national government in its foreign policies must be taken only after careful consideration of the effects upon these same racial elements. It is not an exaggeration to say that there are enough Greeks, Turks and Syrians, not to mention natives of the various Balkan States, to give serious political trouble, at least at the ballot box, to the present Administration if they do not approve of the policy of Mr. Hughes. President Wilson was face to face with the same difficulty at various times during his administration. Thus the present dilemma is to bring the policy of the United States into close touch with Europe and at the same time carry along with the policy the general approval of a sound public opinion, otherwise we are destined to lose immeasurably both in reputation and material interest.

Thus it is real cause for consideration whether the policy followed by this country during the past forty years, of bestowing the franchise upon our teeming immigrants without discrimination, has not been the real cause of preventing us from entering the League of Nations, or any other international association. If this be the case, how can the steps necessary for the future safety and welfare of our country in its international relations be properly entered upon? More and more is it becoming evident that we can not follow forever the policies of isolation and drift to which we seem condemned for the present. It is a safe guess that high protectionism has shot its final bolt, and the present tariff is the last one that will be formulated upon such principles. Then will come the two-fold problem of making the necessary political adjustments in our foreign relations, and at the same time rebuilding our foreign trade. Either one will be sufficient to tax the ingenuity of our statesmen, and a combination of political and economic evils is not one to be looked upon with any form of complacency.—New York Journal of Commerce.

DEMOCRATS WELL SUPPLIED WITH AMMUNITION.

The coming of Senator Heflin to Alabama marks the beginning of the fight of the Democratic cohorts to maintain what they have in Congress and to wrest from republican districts a victory in the coming congressional and senatorial elections. Such speakers as come to Alabama will confine their efforts chiefly to the Seventh district, the only district in this state which is even close. All others are overwhelmingly democratic.

The democratic orators this year go forth with ammunition such as they have never before had to fire at the electorate. All they have to do is to present effectively the record of the republican Congress. Senator Pat Harrison is out on the war-path, and the party has few able exponents in public life of republican weaknesses and shortcomings. Before he started on his trip he summarized the achievements of the present administration in the following language:

This Congress closes in a shroud of disappointment. Its failure to solve vital and pressing problems is pathetic. Democrats are not hilarious, because they have the interest of the country at heart. It is a case of disappointment, sympathy and chagrin more than delight. The Congress ends with a record of increased taxes on the already burdened masses. It ends with increased costs of living to the consumers. It ends with a failure to carry out pledges to the valiant soldiers of the late war. It ends with reorganization and efficiency in government untouched. It ends with stronger guarantees and broader freedom to the protected interests to extort in greater degree higher prices to enslave and rob the many. It ends with the assurance to the laboring man that the republican party will continue to favor the employer against him; and to disregard his every interest with respect to reasonable hours, fair wages and humane consideration. It ends in an orgy of extravagance and a reckless disregard of economy. It ends with an utter repudiation of civil service and preferential rights to the heroes of the late war. It ends as the most reactionary Congress since the time of Aldrich, and the most subservient to executive dictation since the days of Roosevelt. It has proven itself to be spineless, leaderless, without courage, program or purpose. It adjourns in a blaze of broken promises, with a silent and disconsolate procession of mourners returning to their respective constituents with their morale broken, their lines divided and their hopes dissipated.

With a record like this democrats ought to have easy work in convincing voters in the doubtful districts of the necessity for making a change. All of the Alabama congressmen are to assist in close districts of various states, and Senator Underwood will deliver some effective blows in the great senatorial campaigns.—Age-Herald.

The anglers who are willing to arise at an early hour these crisp mornings are being rewarded with some good strikes but that game fish the trout, in the waters of Flint creek. There is no thrill like a good strike from a hungry trout. When hooked he puts up the gamest fight imaginable, and never gives up until he is completely out of the water.

Between the all-Mills murder and the Near East war situation the public hangs suspended with both ears open.

As long as people are red blooded they will gaze to see the contests staged between red bloods of either side. The world likes contests, and is always ready with the cash to see them and bet on the results. There is much science in the game of football, and the prowess of either side is hailed with delight and the victors feted in a way which adds to the charm of the game. The man does not exist who does not like some encomiums of praise and coddling, and all "will fail for it." To watch a forward pass as it sails in a spiral from one end of the field to the other, and with a precision worked out to a mathematical certainty is as surely caught by a player for whom it was intended, will ever hold a place in the mind of the average red blooded man, and this in a way accounts for the eagerness displayed for the supporters of any team. Football has come to stay and it will continue to develop a sturdy manhood of sufficient prowess to command the attention and enlist the enthusiasm of those who care to see the game.

"A single fact is worth a shipload of argument." Volumes of argument have been both printed and spoken. When we consider a fact, it is a truth which exists. Truth is absolutely uncontroversial. Argument may or may not possess one scintilla of truth, and yet argument may be made all the time cunningly devised to evade the truth or the fact. A fact can be pushed in the background for a time, but it will resurrect itself after a time of its own weight, and come forth stronger for the delay. Facts are facts, and they are stubborn things, yet, they are facts.

"Nature has perfected herself by an eternity of practice." Down throughout the centuries nature has ever kept herself true. We see this in the budding trees with each returning springtime. We see it in the adornment which the trees annually make when robed in their garments of green. We see it in the tender sprigs of grass and other early vegetation, which piloted up through the hard bare earth bear silent testimony that nature is true and unwavering, and points the way if humanity would but follow its example, to higher heights and more abiding moments of peace and contentment.

Most of our troubles originate along the old and well known highway of complaining. It is a great thoroughfare, and many there be who travel it every day and partake of the poisonous things it passes out along the way. The road of rejoicing runs parallel with it, but many get switched over on to this highway where doubt and confusion travel side by side. Most of the complaining is useless; it gets one nowhere; it does not fortify one for the actual battles of life, but weakens all the energies when the real test comes. Complaining is useless, and finding fault is its trump card. Avoid it.

Athletics has become as much a part of the college curriculum as has the text books. A good football player has as secure a berth in the college of today, as has the brightest student, though devoid of all athletic trapping. The football star is hailed with delight, the student as just an ordinary man of letters who never gets his name in emblazoned head lines throughout the daily press of the nation.

Roast pig, yam potatoes, pumpkin, sorghum and turnip greens, these are some of the things that the corn fed fellows are enjoying at this particular season in the Tennessee Valley. What more could be wished for unless, the greens be cooked with hog jowl.

The Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company is making some extensive improvements in their equipment in the Twin Cities, replacing defective poles with larger and more substantial ones, and otherwise improving the service. New wires are being put up and cabled, and there is a general improvement in every department of the service. These yearly overhauls are of specified periods with the management of this large concern, and judging from the numerous improvements made, the company anticipates much new and increasing business during the winter.

Now that the farm work of the year is practically over, it is befitting that adequate provision be made for those dumb animals who did your bidding throughout the long hot days of summer, and assisted you in riving from the soil those things which go to fill your barns and bins with plenty. These should not be left to the ravages of the cold winds and rain which come with the winter months, but there should be warm shelters provided, dry and closed up, which will insure to them some of the comforts which humanity expects and enjoys at this period. To do less, is a very inhuman failing.

"NOBODY" DOES NOT KNOW WHAT "NOBODY" DOES

The Delight Thursday has "Nobody" in a tantalizing attraction. Paradoxical as it may seem, "Nobody" does the shooting which is the climax of the story, but "Nobody" is unaware of it. The story is laid in the realms of high society, but it contains an element of mystery so deep that it defies solution. Not until the final scene can anyone in the audience be certain as to how it will end.

Miss Carmen's portrayal of the role of a victim of aphasia—loss of memory—will never be forgotten by those who witness it. It is one of the most difficult parts in the histrionic scale, but the star enacts the role in such a graphic manner that it approaches a masterpiece.

The producer, Roland West, also wrote and directed the feature, and assisted Charles H. Smith in preparing the scenario.

The large supporting cast is one of stellar caliber.

 cause it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S. S. S. builds blood-power, it builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-boils. Fighting-boils destroys impurities. It fights boils. It always wins! It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It builds nerve-power, thinking power, the tight-fisted power that whips a man up into success. It gives women the health, the angelic complexion and the charm that moves the world! These are the reasons that have made S. S. S. today the great blood-cleanser, body-builder, success-builder, and it's why results have made tears of joy flow from the souls of thousands! Mr. V. D. Schaaf, 557 15th St., Washington, D. C., writes:
 "I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it!"
 Try it yourself. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Miss Busybody's Business

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

DEAR WINIFRED BLACK:

I read your article, "The Foolish and Blind," and somehow I can't resist telling you what happened to me. I am 25, very happily married, have the dearest three-room apartment, with large rooms with plenty of sunshine streaming in all day long. Why, my bathroom is as large as the bedroom in some apartments! It's all white tile with a large window opening right on the outside—no air shafts.

My husband can't do enough for me. He cleans the bathroom and kitchen floors for me. Keeps the other floors oiled. Dries the dishes and does everything to make life easy for me.

I have always had a good position, and when I married I felt that I ought to keep it and try and help the bank account grow, and besides, I really like to go out every morning. At night after a day in an office I just love to go home. On account of his helping me, going to business and keeping house is not hard at all.

Whose Business but Yours?

Well, to get on with my story, a distant relative who means nothing to me wrote and asked if she might come and see me. I answered that she might. Well, she came. She had to say my home was lovely. She couldn't say otherwise, but she made a couple of nasty remarks about men marrying who couldn't support their wives. This made me furious. My husband makes $45 a week and I make $30, and as you know there are lots of people with families that get along on a whole lot less than $45 a week. At last she came right out and said I was a fool to go to work, and then I spoke my little piece and told her in a nice way that it was none of her business. This particular woman has a husband who is a cripple. He has not worked in years and she has steadily refused to go to work to help. They live on their wits, bluffing their way through wherever they can. She pays the highest rent she can possibly afford, and in order to get in a good neighborhood she always lives on the top floor, and that crippled husband has to climb up and down four flights of stairs every time he goes out. Don't you think I did right in (to use a slang expression) not letting her get away with it? Why should she hurt my feelings as much as she likes and expect me to consider her? I didn't ask her to come back and see me because I don't want her. Why is it that some people are always trying to make others discontented?

ENGLISH BARMAIDS ARE PEEVED AT AMERICANS

(By International News Service)

LONDON, Oct. 11.—English barmaids are rapidly becoming rabid anti-Americans.

The seductive cocktail is at fault. In the good old days, since "Bluff King Hal" quaffed his nut-brown ale and Falstaff had his "bitters" from a pewter mug, the barmaid was an English institution. She was perfectly capable of drawing ale from the tap and serving it over the bar,

CHANGE OF LIFE

Florida Lady Was in a Miserable Condition, But Says She Found Cardui Helpful, and Got Well.

Altha, Fla.—In explaining how she found Cardui so helpful during change of life, Mrs. Ella M. Bailey, of Route 2, this place, said: "I became so weakened it was an effort for me to get around. I knew what was the matter, but I felt like I couldn't give up. "I just dragged, and I certainly was nervous. I was so restless I could not sit down long—yet so weak I couldn't get about. It is a most miserable and such a helpless feeling. "I would get depressed and out of heart. "I began to feel, after awhile, there was no use to try to get well. This is all wrong, for it makes a person worse. "I had heard of Cardui, and thought it might strengthen me. A neighbor had used it with good results. "I took one bottle (of Cardui), then I saw I wasn't so nervous, so kept it up. "Gradually the nervousness left me. I began to eat and sleep better. Was soon well, and all right. Cardui did wonders for me, and I certainly do recommend it." Thousands of other women have written, to tell of the beneficial results obtained by taking Cardui, and to recommend it to others. Sold everywhere. Try it. NC-146

Winifred Black

DID you do right, little Mrs. Spitfire? Well, yes, I think you did. The only way to stop meddling people from trying to meddle in your affairs is to give them a dose of their own medicine—and be done with it. You didn't invite this person to visit you anyway, and even if you had invited her, your invitation did not carry with it any right to criticism. Of course your visitor was entitled to her own opinion about you and your husband, and your home and the way you live. But, equally of course, she hadn't the slightest right to say one word to you about it. You don't approve of the way she lives, but you didn't think it your affair to tell her so—that's where you showed not only your good sense but your good breeding. So you work, instead of staying at home and doing all the house-keeping yourself, do you?

The Ideal and the Real

Whose business is that but your husband's and yours? Nobody pays much attention to the old-fashioned idea that it is better for a woman to half starve at home and keep her husband's nose to the grindstone all his life than it is for her to help out and make some money and put some of it away so that in their middle life the couple will have something real and substantial. Thousands of girls who couldn't marry at all unless they went on working for a year or so, do marry and they make good wives and happy ones, too. Of course, the ideal marriage is one where the wife can stay at home and take care of the children. But if you haven't children and want to work, who has any right to say one word to you about it or even to lift an eyebrow as you pass? Your life and your husband's life belong to you and to him and to nobody else on earth. I'm glad you gave Mrs. Busybody a piece of your mind. I hope it will do her good.

Hornell, N. Y.—"I was in bad health but there didn't seem to be any one thing the matter with me. I was tired out all over and it was an effort for me to move. I was irritable and could not sleep nights and had trouble with my bowels and at my periods. It seemed that nearly everyone around me knew of your medicine and wanted me to try it. So at last I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound Tablets and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and improved every day. I do all my own work now except the washing and do it with ease. I can accomplish as much in a day now as it would have taken me a week to do last winter and I try to get every one I know to take your medicine to build them up. ## Princess Theater--2-Days-2--Thursday and Friday The Most Spectacular Love Drama Ever Filmed 'THE LOVES OF PHARAOH'

Dramatically Superb—Alan Dale in the New York American

"The Loves of Pharaoh" is a picture of haunting verisimilitude and of acute and dramatic restraint. The Pharaoh of Emil Jannings leered at you in close-ups; curdled your marrow, fascinated your visual faculties, ogled, nightmared and gripped. The impersonation of Pharaoh as set forth by Emil Jannings is epochally superb.

For eleven record-breaking weeks, New York marveled at this picture. All the world is eager to see it. Now it comes to you in all its dazzling splendor! More than a motion picture—a stupendous screen masterpiece, exceeding in size and lavishness of settings any spectacle ever made.

A glowing, heart-appealing romance that weaves into its story all the exotic color and passions of the mysterious East. With a ravishing new screen beauty as the heroine and the finest cast of real actors ever assembled.

A Heroic Epic—New York Journal

Centuries rolled away and the dead past became the living present when "The Loves of Pharaoh" was shown on the Criterion Theater screen last night. Spectators felt themselves not watching a big historical spectacle, but actually participating in a heroic epic. For through the scenic massiveness, through the mighty movement of thousands of people, through the rumbling of empires at war, there ran a story so humanly interesting that frequently the splendor of the settings was forgotten in the thrill of the personal romance. The story deserved the setting. The setting deserved the story.

There's only one thing missing that might spoil you cut aplomb; I almost hate to say it, but you're dumb, my dear, you're dumb.

THE LATEST PROGRESS HOT BLAST

The last word in stove production. Symmetrical and handsome in design, airtight with all doors ground and milled, so that the heat can be controlled to any degree desired, by means of the simple damper system, which is fool proof.

The doors are all extra large and will always fit close. All have large ash pans, so that ashes do not have to be dug through a small opening from the bottom of the stove as is the case with other makes.

They will hold fire twenty-four hours or more without attention, and they require much less fuel than other stoves. The saving in coal will soon pay for the stove.

Coal is high in price, and it behooves one to get the best and most economical heater, and this PROGRESS is emphatically that.

Come In and Examine It

We also have a full line of COAL HODS, FIRE SHOVELS, FIRE POKERS, stove Boards, Flue Stops, Stove Pipe dampers. Every thing to go with the heater.

Stands Upon Its Own Merits; Facts That Should Be Known

Questions asked by the men and women who honestly desire further information on the Alabama Seaport Amendment are welcomed by true advocates of State Ownership and Control of the Gateway to Alabama's commerce.

All of these questions can be answered to the satisfaction of reasonable inquirers without deviating from proven facts.

The inquirers most frequently heard and the answers thereto are:

Q.—Will port improvements under the amendment cost the taxpayers of Alabama anything?

Ans.—No.

Q.—How will the principal and interest on seaport development securities be met?

Ans.—By charges made for wharfage, storage of freight and for the use of the terminal facilities.

Q.—How do you know these charges will produce sufficient money for the purpose?

Ans.—By the income from the volume of commerce passing over the present wharves and terminals and by the experience of state-owned and controlled seaports such as New Orleans, San Francisco, Boston, Portland, Oregon, Houston, Charleston and others.

Q.—Will the present volume of port commerce be maintained?

Ans.—Yes. It is the experience of seaports that additional facilities increase the volume of a port's business.

Q.—How will handling and storage charges at port terminal be fixed?

Ans.—The state, having control of the seaport, will fix the charges over its own and other terminals, thereby guaranteeing that such charges will always be sufficient to meet the cost of maintenance, interest and sinking fund for retirement of seaport securities.

Q.—Who will decide when and where seaport improvements shall be made?

Ans.—The legislature, assisted by state-employed port engineers and the State Harbor Commission.

Q.—How will water front property be acquired?

Ans.—From the City of Mobile, or, islands owned by the state or from private owners, under condemnation proceedings, if necessary.

The Seaport Amendment will be No. 1 on the official ballots used at the November election.

Call at or write to Alabama Seaport Committee, State Headquarters, Mezzanine Floor, Jefferson County Bank Building, Birmingham, or Seaport Committee, care Chamber of Commerce, Mobile, Ala., for information desired on the Seaport Amendment.

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanne Price

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—It is hard to discourage Nature. A living tree is growing on an elevated station platform here in New York in proof of that. Nourished in a small mound of earth swept during many years of elevated trains, it has survived many dry spells and other exigencies of storm and city life. Old-time car men say the shrub was noticed growing on the pile of dirt several years ago and car cleaners have steadily added to the mound as the tree flourished.

New York is willing to look far afield for amusement if she sees any signs of it growing about our wide continent. Consequently, the racing and sporting fraternity, and—breathe it gently—a considerable number of others of our population are planning to take a trip out to the Southwest Coast for the opening of the races at Tia Juana, Mex.

He was a most impressive looking man who was selecting an exceedingly dignified hat in a Fifth Avenue shop. Middle-aged, "bankerish" looking, he had the attention of three clerks. Finally he chose a hat, the asked the salesman to lay it aside until tomorrow as my wife will have to pass on it before I buy it. And I would dare many people to try to pass on any of that man's decisions!

Middle-age is as ready to adopt new customs as youth—if the customs are sensible. Out at Webster Avenue I saw a woman of 55 or so sawing dead limbs from a tree with the greatest ease. She was dressed comfortably in knickerbockers!

If you are arrested, take a baby to court with you—borrow one if you don't own one. Babies are helpful in many crises but nowhere more so than in the courtroom. A woman was arrested with a baby in her arms. Just before he trial the baby began to howl. The judge stood it as long as he could and ordered her case dismissed and told her to leave at once.

I suppose there is no other word which spells luxury to the average one of us like Nassau—and the Bahamas. I am not an imperialist, wanting, wanting Uncle Sam to go about taking territory; but I always have bemoaned a bit because the Bahamas were not a possession of ours. Now, we are to take possession in one sense, at least, and get all we can out of that leisure, that beauty that semi-tropical quality that makes Nassau so wonderful. Club men of all parts of this country are interested in the newest club development which has its headquarters here in New York. A new club house is owned in this country and hundreds of acres are owned by Americans. Little by little the United States is taking possession of those care-free islands.

George Middleton, the playwright, and his wife, Fola La Follette, the daughter of the Senator, are back from two years abroad. "The Light of the World," which Middleton had a part in writing will be the first play of American authorship to be accepted by a state theater in France.

Probably no where in the country are husbands thought of as rakish, selfish worldly men more than in New York. Yet here is just one example of their complete subjection: I was riding on a Third Avenue Elevated train the other day and as the train stopped at a station, I saw through the second story window into a modest apartment. There stood a man attired in his wife's dress, while she was down on her knees putting trimming on it.

Taxi drivers are about as human as anyone else when it comes down to it. An old man stood hesitatingly at the corner of a crowded street the other day. He couldn't get up courage enough to start across. A taxi driver noticed him and the taxi stopped while the driver leaned over and spoke to the timid man. Such a smile of relief and gratitude as spread over that face! He got into the taxi and was driven across the street. When he got out, he made a motion as if to inquire the charge, but the driver waved his hand, smiled sweetly and drove on.

LITTLE MOTHER HAPPY AGAIN.

"For the past nine years I have been very much distressed with bloating and stomach trouble due to constipation since I was a child. No medicine gave me more than temporary relief. I got so bad I was afraid I would have to leave my three little children. But since taking a course of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy two years ago I have been entirely well; no constipation or other trouble." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.—For sale by all druggists. adv.

PROSPECTIVE VALUE OF TEN CROPS GIVEN

MONTGOMERY, ALA., Oct. 11.—The prospective value of ten crops in Alabama, as forecast by the October 1st report, loses about $7,530,000 from that of a month ago; according to an interpretation made by F. W. Gist, federal and state statistician, following the report issued by the Washington office of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics Monday. This is the final forecast of the season, the next report as of November 1st being a preliminary estimate of the yield and production of such crops as have not already been determined.

The following statement shows the forecast of production of the ten leading crops in this state as interpreted from the condition figures of October 1, together with the comparative production as finally estimated for 1921:

	1922	1921
Corn	46,950,000	62,251,000
Cotton	843,000	580,000
Peanuts	4,889,000	7,269,000
Hay	801,000	801,000
S. Potatoes	13,529,000	12,150,000
I. Potatoes	4,820,000	2,400,000
Sorghum	6,405,000	7,650,000
Sugar cane	6,405,000	7,650,000
Oats	4,986,000	4,404,000
Wheat	300,000	321,000

The following values are computed at present prices for the qualifications named above, in comparison with the values of the final harvest last year:

	1922	1921
Corn	$42,250,000	$38,844,000
Cotton	96,945,000	50,800,000
Peanuts	4,889,000	5,082,000
Hay	11,294,000	12,380,000
S. Pots.	12,853,000	8,870,000
I. Pots.	7,875,000	4,080,000
Sorghum	2,562,000	3,213,000
Sugar cane	3,615,000	5,413,000
Oats	3,490,000	4,404,000
Wheat	300,000	321,000
Total	$185,833,000	$133,407,000

These ten crops a month ago gave promise of a total value of $193,363,000. They constitute about 75 per cent of the harvested crops of this state, to which must be added the value of livestock and their products and also the value of unharvested crops.

Pastures on October 1st showed a condition of 65, compared with 76 on September 1st, due to lack of moisture.

F. W. GIST,
Agricultural Statistician.

"THE LOVES OF PHAROAH."

The Princess Thursday and Friday will show "The Loves of Pharaoh," in which it is said more people appear than in any other play. The spectator sees 112,000 persons in this most tremendous production directed by Ernest Lubitsch, creator of "Passion" and "Deception." When Mr. Lubitsch announced at a luncheon in New York that 112,000 persons appeared in "The Loves of Pharaoh," some of those who heard him were frankly skeptical. That was far more than were used in "Passion" and "Deception" and "The Birth of a Nation" combined.

Mr. Lubitsch turned for corroboration to his manager, Paul Davidson, who showed a receipt from a theatrical agency for its commissions for furnishing 112,065 extras during the filming of the Paramount picture "The Loves of Pharaoh," which will be at the Princess next Thursday and Friday.

The extras were paid every evening at sundown as they filed back to the steamship that transported them from ancient Egypt to modern Europe. The paymaster's record shows that he handed out wages to 112,065 persons during the filming.
